Legal Utopia

Legal Utopia builds solutions that help people find public access barristers. Our AI tool diagnoses more than 400k legal problems. It uses AI to classify descriptions of legal problems and acts like a search engine for people to understand their legal issues.

Under our free Standard service, we offer one-month contracts to public access barristers. They can upload their profiles and calendars, securely and for free, to our Find and Book a Lawyer services, so that clients can find and book them. Clients can choose their profiles, see live calendar availability, and book and hold virtual calls with public access barristers, or arrange to meet them in person.

All public access barristers pay to unlock a client. Once a client is unlocked, public access barristers are given free access to all other clients who may book for the next calendar month. We also offer further marketing under our Premium package for a fee.

The company takes a customer-first approach, building services that connect lawyers and people. It was formed in 2017 and pioneered AI to help people understand their legal issues and find and schedule meetings with lawyers. We obtained a grant from KEEP+ Scheme in 2018 and, by 2019, had analysed more than 100k+ cases to help us build our AI. In 2020, we were a member of the LawTechUK sandbox, received press coverage, and an Innovate UK-backed grant. We have since launched our app and web portal, and are talking to partners abroad.

Trustpilot

Trustpilot is a leading global review platform which aims to become a universal symbol of trust.

We bring businesses and consumers together, to foster trust and inspire collaboration. Our platform helps consumers find trustworthy information which enables them to shop with confidence.

Trustpilot also gives businesses the opportunity to earn trust and engage with their customers. Our platform offers analytics to help businesses improve the service they provide and grow more efficiently. The more consumers use Trustpilot and share their own opinions; the richer the insights we offer businesses; and the more opportunities they have to earn the trust of consumers, from all around the world.

Our platform is open to everybody and built on transparency. Crucially, Trustpilot is free to use for both businesses and consumers.

Legal service providers can get started and use our platform without paying a penny by signing up for Trustpilot Free. If our Free package does not meet your needs, you can also sign up for a Standard plan from as little as £199 per year, which would help to drive Google seller ratings, give access to our marketing assets and allow you to invite more clients for feedback - among many other benefits.

89% of consumers in the UK now check online reviews before making purchases. Over 120 million reviews have been posted on Trustpilot - and that number is growing by more than one review every second.

To find out how your firm can benefit from Trustpilot, contact Neil Bayton, head of partnerships at Trustpilot, at nba@trustpilot.com, or visit www.trustpilot.com.
